AGENDA

#CCWEUROPE | CCWEUROPE.COM

Who could have imagined the new decade would start in such a turbulent and distressing way?

As the entire world and multiple companies learn to cope at these unprecedented times; customer service and front line workers have been key in providing stability and the assurance that is most needed. They have been working under tremendous pressure to ensure they continue delivering for their customer, upholding the company image and brand promise. It is also crystal clear that the customer experience and customer service functions will see the most impact, not only in their immediate ways of responding to the current situation but also in a much more profound and long-term way of rethinking their operating model and building their business continuity plans.

The current crisis will lead all businesses to rethink and reimagine the future of work and how we can support our customers and employees at difficult times like these. Companies that have invested heavily in digital technologies and are ahead in digital transformation will see themselves better positioned to adapt to remote working, having fully functioning and connected digital channels to support their customer needs.

On a more positive note, it is clear that the current crisis has also brought us all together as we realise the importance of meaningful relationships. As businesses and companies, we can all reflect and learn from this: to embed the human touch in their customer strategy and make each and every interaction count as moments of truth. We have also seen countless leaders stand up to show true leadership at times like this, putting their people first when making difficult business decisions. We have no doubt that businesses who have a true customer vision, are equipped with advanced technologies and genuinely focus on their people will come out on the other end stronger than ever.

Leading with these key themes, CCW Europe will continue to bring together Europe's most progressive CX and customer contact leaders - leaders who are relentlessly driving customer centricity, innovating and disrupting through new technologies, as well as transforming their culture for improved performance.

More than ever before, organisations will aggressively push for their digital agenda and continue to innovate and in order to ensure they are as prepared as they can be for uncertain times like this.

Customer Contact Week (CCW) Europe is the #1 place for progressive CX, customer contact and digital transformation leaders to keep their tight grip on the pace of change, to check on emerging technologies set to disrupt the industry and to build valuable relationships with industry peers.

This year, 2020, CCW Europe will continue to bring together Europe's most progressive CX and customer contact leaders - leaders who are relentlessly driving customer centricity, innovating and disrupting through new technologies, as well as transforming their culture for improved performance.

CCW Europe 2020 is where CX, Customer Contact, Digital Transformation and Leadership converge with case studies displaying best practices in the following areas:

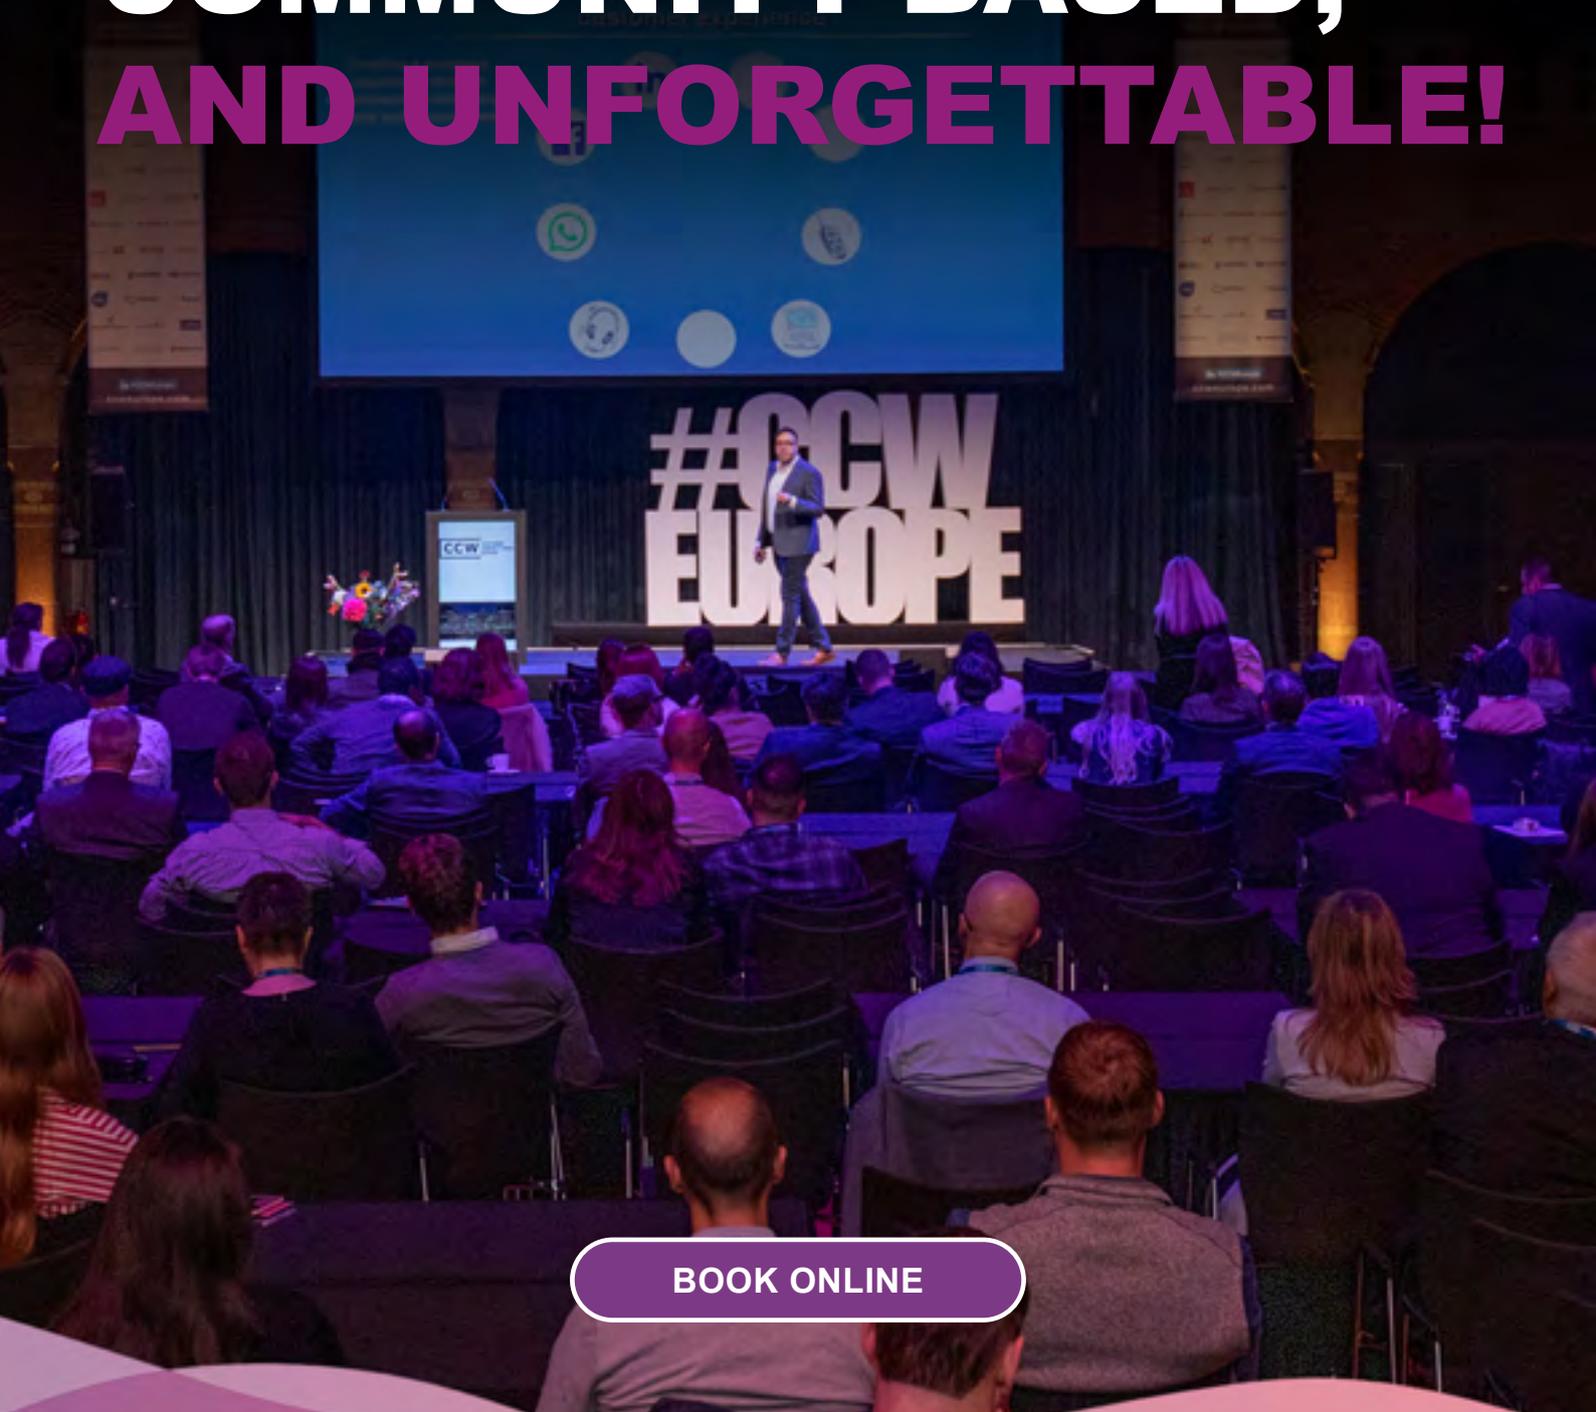

- Supercharge your customer experience strategy to drive business breakthrough
- Disrupt the way you provide customer value through digital transformation
- Inspire your people through authentic leadership
- Transform your contact centres to be multi-experience customer innovation hubs
- Evaluate emerging technologies and innovations that will boost your CX and customer contact strategies

We are also committing to making CCW Europe 2020 "unforgettable" to a whole different level...

MATTHEW SYED

However motivating our CX and Customer Contact speakers are, sometimes it's important to step out of your box, and hear from people outside the industry in order to spark a little inspiration. Introducing Matthew Syed, one of the world's most influential thinkers in the field of high performance and cultural change.

MEASURE + DEVELOP = UNLOCK HIGH
YOUR MINDSET      YOUR MINDSET      PERFORMANCE

He has worked with some of the world's leading organisations to build a mindset of continuous improvement. Syed is the author of four bestselling books – Bounce, Black Box Thinking, The Greatest and You Are Awesome. He is a multiple award winning journalist for The Times and a highly-acclaimed speaker, regularly contributing to radio and television.

Matthew Syed explores a thought provoking approach to high performance in the context of a complex and fast-changing world. He draws on a vast array of case studies and real-world examples across sport, business, education and politics. Syed looks at the inside story of how success really happens – and how we cannot grow unless we are prepared to learn from our mistakes.

Before becoming a writer, journalist and broadcaster, Matthew Syed was the England table tennis number one for almost a decade, three-times Commonwealth Champion, and twice competed for Great Britain in the Olympic Games (in Barcelona in 1992 and Sydney in 2000).

At the heart of Matthew's presentation is the notion, "science of success". Just what does it take to be the best? Matthew uncovers the "hidden logic of success" behind the careers of world-beaters from David Beckham and Serena Williams to Mozart and Picasso. ✨

Ted Hunting, Senior Vice President of Marketing, Bright Pattern

09:45 BIG IDEAS KEYNOTE:

The world has changed, And so should you! Explore the best-kept secrets of the world's most successful teams to implement a growth mindset

Growth mindset is the psychological ingredient that underpins great organisations. People in this mindset see success as dynamic in nature. They are less worried about what they know now than about how quickly they can learn. Precisely because of this perspective, they look for new information, update their assumptions, and are not afraid of their mistakes.

This rings particularly true for all businesses and leaders as we are emerging into a new world that has just suffered a devastating global pandemic crisis. As we focus on rebuilding our businesses and operating models, the right psychology is the starting point for all the other things – agility, adaptability, innovation, continuous improvement – that are so important to our future post COVID-19. We need to get away from self-justification and status quo bias - and change the world.

In his keynote Matthew will explore some of the best-kept secrets of the world's most successful teams, as well as bring insights from psychology, anthropology and data science. He will highlight how to implement a growth culture and the difference that that can have on performance – both at an individual level and at an organisational level.

Matthew Syed, Best Selling Author, Thought Leader Bounce & Black Box Thinking

12:00 Panel Discussion: Design, integrate and optimise self-service channels and making them stick

The outbreak of COVID-19 has highlighted the importance of digital interactions with customers. This panel will draw experiences from senior leaders on how they are taking their digital platforms to the next level to be able to serve customers better:

- Redesigning the front end customer experience online
- Integrating digital platforms to ensure a seamless customer experience
- Developing digital capabilities to break down the silos
- Analysing and evaluating the usage and effectiveness of your self-service channels

Workforce Analytics: Using Data to Adapt in Rapidly-Changing Times

From calls, letters, and faxes in the 90s, to the omni-channel experience of the 2020s, analysing customer experience has always been tough. Organisations need to join together CX data from disparate systems so they can analyse, take action, and finally measure the effect.

This has been exponentially accelerated by the pandemic. New channels were launched in weeks. Employees are operating in radically different contexts. Organisations delivered this rapid change on multiple CX platforms with no single view of the employee or customer experience. How can we adapt to this new context?

Join Ed Creasey as he shares use cases that show how technology makes it easy to analyse customer and agent challenges in one place. He will share use cases of how organisations join together disparate data and apply analytics to forecasting, scheduling, coaching, evaluation, and performance management - helping you analyse every step of the journey for customers and employees.
