

Part lecture performance, part ecological demonstration, Performing the Directors' Notes: Pickle Party x Living Stage engages people in developing a greater understanding and appreciation of the living world. The tablescape becomes the setting for celebrating ecological stories with the community of artists. Bringing a regenerative focus to the session, Performing the Directors' Notes: Pickle Party x Living Stage creates opportunities for thrive-ability across more-than-human systems. Participants will get to interact with the edible tablescape, get their hands dirty and attempt different pickling recipes, celebrating microbial communities and demonstrating food-generation with a twist. By spotlighting pickling traditions across Singapore, Austria and host country Sharjah, Performing the Directors' Notes: Pickle Party x Living Stage produces a renewed attention within viewers to the manifold perspectives about fermentation as a tangible visualisation of alchemy.
