

Salud America: This is How Cities Can Discover Where Affordable Housing and Transportation Meet (or Not)

“Housing and transportation are two key ingredients for health equity. In a good combination, people easily find affordable housing near schools, jobs, groceries, and healthcare. In a bad combination, people struggle to find affordable housing near essential destinations and transportation options. They have to rely on expensive vehicle ownership or infrequent transit with unsafe streets and no sidewalks or bike lanes.

Which does your neighborhood have?”

- This is How Cities Can Discover Where Affordable Housing and Transportation Meet \(or Not\) (Salud America)